TEXT 1 The Quiet Resilience

[4p]

Przeczytaj tekst i wykonaj ćwiczenie poniżej.

Emma had always been a reserved person. She wasn't the type to seek attention, and she preferred to keep her thoughts and feelings to herself. However, beneath her quiet demeanor, she possessed a remarkable strength. Her ability to stay calm in challenging situations had earned her the respect of her colleagues. Even when her team faced difficulties at work, Emma remained composed, offering practical solutions and motivating others without raising her voice. She didn't boast about her achievements, yet it all made her a silent leader. Emma knew that true strength didn't always need to be loud or obvious—it was often found in the calmest moments.

Obok każdego z poniższych wyrazów (1-4) napisz jego przeciwieństwo wybrane z tekstu.

1. theoretical _____
2. failures _____

[6p]

Przeczytaj tekst i wykonaj ćwiczenie poniżej.

Sophia had always dreamed of living in a big city. Growing up in a small town, she imagined the fast-paced life and the endless opportunities that would come with moving to a new place. Seven years ago, she made the decision to leave her hometown and move to New York City. The transition was challenging at first. She had to adjust to the hustle and bustle, the crowded streets, and the unfamiliar surroundings. Despite the initial difficulties, Sophia soon found herself thriving in the new environment. She enrolled in a language course, made new friends, and even landed a job at a prestigious company.

Looking back, Sophia now knows that moving to the city was one of the best decisions she has ever made. She has grown in ways she has never expected, both personally and professionally. In the future, she plans to travel the world, something she has always wanted to do but has never had the courage to pursue until now. Had she not taken the risk to move, she knew she would have regretted it forever. If she hadn't embraced change, she wouldn't be where she was today.

TEXT 3 The Forgotten Appointment

Przeczytaj tekst i wykonaj ćwiczenie poniżej.

[5p]

Four friends—Amara, Felix, Naomi, and Theo—were clearing out the attic of Theo's grandmother's house when they discovered a leather-bound journal hidden in an old trunk. The journal, belonging to a woman named Evelyn from the 1920s, revealed fragments of her life, including her unfulfilled dreams, deep fears, and a mysterious, unfinished letter addressed to someone known only as "R."

Amara was skeptical of the journal's authenticity, noting that certain details seemed too polished to be genuine. Felix, on the other hand, was captivated by the historical elements in the entries, convinced of its authenticity and eager to uncover Evelyn's story. Naomi, unusually reserved, appeared troubled by the initials embossed on the cover. They seemed familiar, tied to a family tale she vaguely recalled about a woman named Evelyn who once lived nearby.

Meanwhile, Theo attempted to keep the group focused on their original task of helping his grandmother. Despite this, he couldn't hide his growing interest in the journal. Later, while the others were occupied, he quietly stayed behind in the attic, continuing to read the entries alone.

The journal left the friends with lingering questions. Who was "R"? Why had Evelyn's letter never been sent? Each of them found themselves inexplicably drawn to the fragments of her story, wondering whether it connected to their lives in ways they hadn't yet understood.

Na podstawie tekstu napisz, która osoba (Amara, Felix, Naomi czy Theo) wypowiedziała poniższe słowa (1-5). Napisz imię wybranej osoby w wyznaczonym miejscu.

1. "We're here to help Gran, but this is fascinating." _____
2. "This journal is historically accurate and absolutely worth investigating." _____
3. "Great, finally I'm by myself to dig more." _____
4. "These details match stories my great-grandmother used to tell me about someone named Evelyn." _____
5. "The handwriting is too perfect for something this old." _____

Rain hammered against the windows as Emily sat curled up with a steaming cup of tea and an engaging mystery novel. It was a dreary afternoon, but she found solace in the rhythmic patter of rain and the captivating twists of her book. Suddenly, a sharp knock on the door broke her concentration.

When she opened it, no one was there. All that remained was a small, plain box sitting neatly on the doorstep. There was no address, no name—just a cryptic label that read: "For Your Eyes Only."

Slightly unnerved but intrigued, Emily carried the box to her kitchen. She debated for a moment: should she open it now or wait until later? Curiosity eventually won. Inside, she found two peculiar items—a faded photograph of a house she recognized and a handwritten note. The note read: "This belongs to you. The truth lies where it all began."

The photograph stirred memories Emily hadn't thought about in years. It showed a familiar house—her childhood home, now abandoned. Determined to uncover the mystery, she decided to visit the house the following day, despite the unsettling feeling lingering in her chest. What secrets would the house reveal?

ACROSS
