SHOPPING IN MARRAKESH

Marrakesh in Morocco is famous for its big central square, Djemaa el-Fna, and its souks or street markets. A souk is a labyrinth of small streets with stalls and small shops. There are different things for sale in each street. For example, in one street they sell carpets and in the next traditional clothes, like caftans (long dresses for women) or a fez (a round red hat for men).

Jewellery and leather products are also very popular. Sometimes craftsmen sit outside and make their products in front of the customers. The craftsmen and shop assistants invite people into their shops and say "Come in and have a look," in different languages. Then, they usually offer customers some sweet mint tea. The prices of the products are not fixed. The answer to the question "How much is this?" is usually "How much do you want to pay?".

Terra e Mare I'm not sure why the walls in this family restaurant are painted orange. But it serves a good choice of pasta, meat and fish. The grilled salmon is fantastic and the special chocolate cake is amazing. In the evening there is usually a band. A great place for a fun evening with friends.	Catch of the Day It's only a hundred meters from the beach. The menu includes fish soup, garlic prawns, grilled sardines, salmon and about a hundred other kinds of seafood, some of which you may be seeing for the first time in your life. The waiters are friendly and there is always good music you can hear from speakers!	The Car Wash Do you remember the Blue Elephant car wash, which closed a few years ago? It is now a small restaurant and art gallery. You can have very good salads and pasta. There are also amazing homemade desserts, especially the apple pie. On the walls you can see work by students from the nearby art college.
